Thomas Shadwell: The Volunteers (Drury Lane, 1692), Act V Scene I
Blunt. Ha Fellow, what dost thou mean by a Maggot?
Hop. Sir, a little Concern of mine in my way, - a little whim, or so sir.

It is a big leap from the larval stage of a fly to the artistic artefact of an English Country Dance, so the appearance of these dances in The Dancing-Master from 1695 onwards is a subject of great interest. Various named after dancers and dancing-masters, composers and musicians, they make a fascinating collection — as today's programme hopes to show, with its emphasis on newly-researched dances.
